As a CSUN student, your courses will link to important conversations and research in the real world. Not only will you learn how to enter new jobs and markets – you'll know how to excel once you get there.

Take courses designed and taught by industry experts

In our programs, you'll learn from the top people in your industry. From business and engineering to healthcare and finance, our faculty use real-world experience to introduce concepts and methods you can apply immediately. Most programs also feature research and fieldwork to help you build invaluable hands-on experience.

At CSUN, no two online programs are alike. We design each one from scratch, and carefully plan all courses and assignments for your academic and professional success. Our online degrees and certificates are held to the same high standards as on-campus programs and feature live class sessions, on-demand access to course materials and daily networking opportunities.

We understand the need for advanced professional education in established and emerging fields. By grounding course work in multiple disciplines, faculty prepare graduates for the full range of opportunities in today's evolving, global market.
